What is PrEP, PEP, and doxyPEP?

PEP (Post-Exposure Prophylaxis) and PrEP (Pre-Exposure Prophylaxis) are critical medications that help prevent HIV. PEP is used after potential exposure, while PrEP is taken daily to reduce the risk before exposure. DoxyPEP, taken after potential exposure to STIs, can help prevent infections like chlamydia and gonorrhea. These resources empower you to take control of your sexual health, especially for those facing higher risks due to past homelessness or incarceration. Connect with local healthcare providers to learn more about accessing PEP, PrEP, and DoxyPEP. Your health matters, and you deserve the care you need.
